Trump's tax law cut the corporate tax rate from 35% to 21%.

What did corporations do with the money saved?

They didn't invest it or raise wages.

They spent a record $1 trillion on stock buybacks the year after the law went into effect.

Nothing trickled down to workers.

Both he man AND woman--the ADULTS--are responsible for THE CHILDREN that THEY (plural) choose to bring into the world

If ONE of those adults is abusive, the OTHER has the responsibility AS A PARENT to remove the child from negligence, abuse, emotional control, etc.

By law, ADULTS are responsible for their own actions AND to raise kids in a healthy home. If they fail that BASIC requirement, they can legally lose their kids
As a woman I'm hardly a misogynist ☺ just pro responsible parenting

Sen. @brianschatz: According to Project 2025, if Donald Trump is president the people around him would not be there on the basis of their rank, their experience, or their expertise. The primary qualification would be loyalty to Donald Trump. Anyone who will not give blind loyalty to Donald Trump will not be in his next administration. This a plan to turbo-charge and institutionalize the chaos we saw during Trump's first term

I have a 'common sense' approach to life, and really hold out hope that those wearing red, blue or whatever truly know what they're supporting this November. Frankly, the comments from the right seem to show an understanding of their party's expected deliverables....logic.

The left leaning seems to be driven more by emotion. Just my take.

Regardless, each of our votes affects everyone collectively so we must vote responsibly having done serious research.

THE REPUBLICAN PLAYBOOK, BROUGHT TO YOU BY JOSEPH GOEBBELS.

THE NINE FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES OF PROPAGANDA

Propaganda is the backdoor hack into your mind

1. BIG LIE - Always choose the big lie over the small; the masses will believe it more readily.
2. FOCUS - Use only one or at most two selling points.
3. REPEAT - Use them over and over until even your enemies know them by heart.
4. BLAME - Never waver, acknowledge no doubt; always blame, never credit the other side. Debase, defame, dehumanize.
5. PROVOKE - First attract attention, then appeal to emotions.
6. CRISIS - Shades of gray don't work: Issues must be life/death, good/evil, freedom/slavery, love/hate.
7. EMOTIONAL SYMBOLS - Good slogans have no literal meaning, only a strong emotional appeal.
8. PANDER - Ignore intellectuals and reasonable arguments; target the unthinking masses with powerful emotional pitches.
9. NO LIMITS - Ignore all moral limits whenever you deem it useful.

Vance represents a far more insidious threat to democracy than Trump. While Trump's crude outbursts and chaotic governance are somewhat obvious, Vance's carefully measured dog whistles—particularly to the Christian nationalist right—allow him to smuggle anti-democratic ideas into the mainstream under a guise of reasonableness. Once Trump is gone, characters like Vance will vie for power. But do not mistake a more calculated messaging as less scary. It's likely more dangerous.

Democrats are launching a new messaging campaign calling Trump a "chicken" for refusing to debate again.

The DNC will have static and mobile billboards — the first of which will appear at Trump's rally in Pennsylvania and include an altered image of Trump in a chicken suit with the words, "There's no debate: Donald Trump's a chicken."

@realDonaldTrump: As usual, you're spreading misinformation. Federal law protects the rights of all American citizens to vote, regardless of whether personal or professional matters take them to other countries. For example, if you choose someday to live, as you have suggested you might, in Venezuela (which personally I hope you do, but only after you have served the multiple criminal sentences that judges will likely impose on you), the law would protect your right to vote.
